Over 30 years of research demonstrate the powerful relationship between parent involvement and student performance. Students with involved parents, no matter what their income or background, are more likely to earn higher grades and test scores, have better social skills, graduate and go on to post secondary education. Since 1978, PEATC has promoted active partnerships between parents and professionals that continue to lead to positive results for children. When parents are involved and when parents and teachers partner the end result are successful children. If you are a parent, please take a minute to show your child’s teachers how important they are. If you are a teacher, consider sending a Valentine to your students’ parents to let them know how much you count on them to reinforce what you are doing at school in the home. You can personalize, cut, fold and send out this Valentine for Valentine’s Day. Also for more family crafts check out www.familycrafts.com
